

Cari Rudd

Cari Rudd is a strategic communications consultant who works with progressive organizations and elected officials to help address complex challenges effectively. Her professional experience includes serving U.S. Senator Tom Daschle in his leadership operations, overseeing direct marketing at the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee and co-founding her own film production company, Bank Street Pictures. She has been a columnist for Skirt Magazine and a guest speaker at the Communications Leadership Institute.

An Iowa native and graduate from the University of Iowa, Cari sat center stage to political theater growing up as the daughter of the Executive Producer of Iowa's "Meet the Press."

Cari's advocacy interests include protecting public health by reducing toxins in our environment, preserving biodiversity and addressing the growing need for sustainable agriculture.

Cari and her husband David live in Washington D.C. They are the proud parents of a son, Lucas, an emerging naturalist.

Funding history:

Environmental Working Group
American Bird Conservancy
Nature Conservancy
Smithsonian Institution
Osa Conservation
International Center for Journalism

Board Experience:

Environmental Working Group
Environmental Working Group Action Fund
Common Sense about Kids and Guns
Lyon Park Community Association
Veterans Education Success
Rachel's Action Network